

Parallelism

Fix the following sentences by putting parallel ideas into the same grammatical form. Correct any errors in the placement of correlatives and in the omission of a necessary article, proposition, or pronoun.

01. Its large size, simple structure, and how prolific they are, make the common cockroach convenient to study.

02. Cockroaches have smooth leathery skin, long thin antennae, and they have a body that is thick and flat.

03. They are not only found in urban areas but tropical.

04. The Oriental cockroach is short-winged, while cockroaches from America have full wings.

05. North America boasts about sixty species, but only two in Great Britain.

06. Cockroaches may be dark brown, pale brown, or of a green color that is delicate.

07. Cockroach eggs are laid in small cases, carried on the female body, and then they deposit them in hidden crevices.

08. A cockroach lives as a nymph for about a year, and as an adult its life lasts about half a year.

09. The odors that attract cockroaches are sweet, but they emit disagreeable odors.

10. What a cockroach soils is far more than it consumes.

11. By day the average cockroach is quietly lazy, but busily energetic describes how it is by night.

12. We might not only view the cockroach with great disgust but also intense interest.
